INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE “2000 YEARS OF DIASPORAS”
OCTOBER 23-25, 2000, JERUSALEM

The conference “2000 Years of Diasporas” aims at exploring the concept of diaspora by adopting a critical approach of its diverse readings. This meeting will focus on a methodological and theoretical reflection on the construction of the notions of exile and return; on the representations of “the homeland”, imaginary or real; and on the fate of diasporas when assimilation and integration are variables that shape their future characters.

To carry out this interdisciplinary project, we are directing our call for papers to anthropologists, sociologists, geographers, political scientists, but also historians and economists in such a way that an array of disciplines can present its approaches and its representations of the notion of diaspora.

Sessions will focus on the evolution of classical diasporas (Armenians, Jews, Greeks...), the emergence of new diasporas (Maghrebian, Russian, or Japanese for example), transnational networks (such as Chinese, Turkish, or African diasporas), collective memory and the relations to the homeland (e.g. Palestinians, Tibetans, Gypsies) and the role of diasporas in global cities.
