

SOMMAIRE

Acknowledgements

Abstract

Abbreviations

Introduction

1 Thesis Outline: Imbalance and Equalization

2. The Industrial Integration of the Hexagon: a Historiographical Essay

Chapter One: The Division of Labor: Toward a Decentralization Doctrine

1. Imbalance and Decentralization in Interwar France

2 Parisians into Peasants

3. Mobilizing the Provincial Worker

Conclusion

Chapter Two: Containing Paris

1 Reconstruction

2 Growth and Decline: the Impact of 1955

3 Renault: the “Prototype” of Decentralization

Conclusion

Chapter Three: Renaissance and Stability: Provincial Industrialization, 1944-1954

1 The Planners’ Programs

2 The Regional Wage Gap

3 Jobs and Labor

4. Political Change in the Provinces

Conclusio

Chapter Four: Regional Development Orthodoxies, 1954-1958

1. New Policies

2. Spatial Keynesianism

3 The Two Frances

4. Development: a Foreign Import

5 A New French Citizen

Conclusion

Chapter Five: Territory in the Era of Decolonization

1. Real Empire and Colonial Metaphors

2. Internal Colonialism: the Case of the Sociétés d'aménagement régional (SAR)

3. Decolonization and National Integration

Conclusion

Chapter Six: The Wild West: Citroën and the Reshaping of Brittany

1. Building a Better Region

2. Recruiting the Ideal Worker

3. Living In-between

Conclusion

Chapter Seven: An Honest and Individualized Worker

Citroën-Rennes and the Contestation of Decentralized Industry

1. Power in the Factory

2. The Battle for Rennes

Conclusion

Conclusion: Les années 1968

1. Paris: from Working-Class Town to Global City

2. Taylorist Industrialization: Integration and Inequality

3. The Provincial Metropolis: Growth Poles and Elite Enclaves

4. Regional Development Orthodoxies Under Siege

Archives

Bibliography

Index of names